Omissions include the Corporation of the City of London (the charter granted in 1067 by William the Conqueror), the Bank of England, all but one of the 66 official cities of the United Kingdom and the finance-based 'instant livery companies' encouraged by Sir Kenneth Cork, Lord Mayor of London 1978-79.

Suspected omissions include other Oxbridge colleges, Eton and other public schools.

It seems evident that 'non-recital' and 'mis-recital' are practiced by the Privy Council Office itself.
